With the march “SPRING OF JOYS” for Concert Band by Martin Heinrichs, we embark on a short musical excursion to spring, perhaps to a water source or up a mountain with a wonderful view of the countryside. The day starts with a cheerful hiking song, a refreshment stop in between and a little May devotion with music are of course always appropriate.

The ambiguity of spring and spring has always been a poetic allegory of awakening and leaves enough room in the composition for little quotations from water sources and the lovely May time. Short thunderstorms surprise the wanderers from time to time, but the sky always opens up again and so the grandiose final passage can be a source of springtime joy for listeners and musicians alike.
